MDA Speech re Fire Prevention

My fellow Americans,

I stand before you today to speak about a matter of grave importance: the preservation of our forests and the prevention of wildfires.

We live in a time of great peril. The forces of evil are gathering, and they threaten our forests.

Our forests protect us from the unspeakable evil of suburbia.

But wildfires threaten our forests.

We must protect our forests from wildfires.

We must practice fire safety.

This means mowing tall grass around our homes, clearing brush, and never leaving fires unattended.

We must manage our forests.

This includes thinning our forests, and removing underbrush and other ladder fuel.

Even so, we must always be prepared for wildfires.

We must be ready. Each of us must have a plan in place in case of fire.

My fellow countrymen, we must choose between two paths. We can either stand by and do nothing, or we can stand up and fight for our forests.

We will not be intimidated. We will not be cowed. We will not be defeated.

We are the residents of Mount Dallas. We are the beacon of hope for the world.

And we will not fail.

Thank you.
